natural stone solutions from the Cotswolds

Fieldstone slates have their origins in the natural Cotswold slate that has been famously quarried in the North Cotswolds and is still produced today in limited volumes at Huntsmans.

Today, Fieldstone slates are the region's premier conservation slate used on prestigious developments throughout the area and are virtually indistinguishable from the original.

The slates are hand made using moulds cast from original slates. They are created from quality materials quarried in the Cotswolds and meet all the requirements of BS EN 491: 2004. The slates are an authentic warm Cotswold colour, graded in diminishing sizes and varied widths with a full slate profile for authenticity and nibbed for easy fixing.
